

Early Support for Infants and Toddlers (ESIT)

Joint Initiative between ESIT State Leadership Office and King County
Developmental Disabilities and Early Childhood Supports Division

Frequently Asked Questions for Families

Early Support for Infants and Toddlers (ESIT) supports families of babies and toddlers (birth to age 3) who may have developmental delays or disabilities. The program works closely with families to give them the tools and guidance they need to support their child's development. ESIT provides support, therapy, and resources to help children learn and grow during their most important early years.

ESIT is funded through a combination of federal and state dollars. ESIT receives funding under Part C of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), a federal law that ensures early intervention services for infants and toddlers with developmental delays or disabilities. IDEA Part C provides states with grants to support program development. In addition to federal funding, Washington state also provides significant resources to ensure that ESIT services are available to all eligible families.

Across Washington state, community-based agencies, nonprofits, and hospitals provide ESIT services to families. To participate in the ESIT program, provider agencies will need to collect some information from families to support them in an individualized way. The purpose of this document is to help families understand what information does and does not need to be collected to participate in services.

Does ESIT ask about immigration status?

- No. ESIT does not ask about, or require, the immigration status of a child or caregivers.

Does ESIT ask for birth certificate?

- No. ESIT does not ask for, or require, a birth certificate of a child or caregivers.

Does ESIT ask for social security numbers?

- No. ESIT does not ask for, or require, a social security number of a child or caregivers.

Personal Identifying Information

- First + last name

What personal identifying information is asked about my child for enrollment?

- First + last name
- Address
- Date of birth
  - ESIT services support children under age 3, so your child’s birth date confirms eligibility and guides a plan for required transition activities at age 3. States must report age demographic trends in Part C early intervention programs to the U.S. Department of Education. Child and family personal identifying information is not reported at the federal level.

Demographics

What demographics information will your family be asked about?

- Primary Language
  - You are not required to answer this. However, we may ask if you would like language access supports, such as interpretation or translation.
- Race/Ethnicity
  - This information is self-reported. You may respond in any way you’re comfortable.
  - Race and ethnicity are requested to ensure equitable access to services, track trends, and ensure resources are addressing community needs. States are required by the U.S. Department of Education to track demographic trends in Part C early intervention programs. Individual child and family demographics are not reported at the federal level.

Other Information

What other information will your family be asked about?

- Phone number
  - Your phone number will be used to coordinate services, keep families informed, and ensure timely communication about services. Caregivers with privacy concerns can request other types of communication.
  - This is required for enrollment but not shared outside of our state system.
- Child’s birth and development history

- We collect this information to support your child’s developmental goals and to be aware of any important medical information. You can share as much or as little as your family is comfortable with. For example, you don’t have to share where your child was born.
- Child/family routines and activities
  - We collect this information to support functional and individualized outcomes for your child and family. You can share as much or as little as your family is comfortable with. For example, you don’t need to share names of family members or specifics about places your family spends time at.
- Family concerns, resources, and priorities
  - This information supports us in being able to address your family’s priorities and to create a plan that is individual to your child. You can share as much or as little as your family is comfortable with.

Who has Access to My Data?

Will my child/family data be shared at the federal level?

No, we share statewide percentages and total enrollment numbers, but no personal identifiable information is shared. For example, the state will report the number of children served in each county, but names and addresses are not shared outside of Washington state.

Will my child and family’s data be shared with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE)?

No, there are several laws that protect your child and family’s individual data, including: the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), and the Keep Washington Working Act. See the Privacy and Protections Policy Table below for more information.
